

Blue Yonder's Bandana Pants

1 Lay two identical bandanas one on top of the other. Bandanas are usually printed on both sides. If yours aren't, stack them with right sides together.

2 Fold the stacked bandanas in half, lengthwise.

3 Cut a "J" shape through all 4 layers, about 2 inches in and 10 inches long.

4 Open the "tube", and shift it so that the sewn parts line up. Press open the seams, line up the crotch and pin. Then, pin the legs closed.

4 Unfold the bandanas and sew them together along the cut edges. Repeat, for extra strength!

6 Sew, starting at the bottom of one leg, through the crotch, and down the other leg

7 With the pants opened, fold over about two inches. Slide the opening over your machine and sew all the way around, stopping a couple of inches from where you started. This is the casing for your elastic.

8 Measure your child's waist, and cut a piece of elastic about an inch longer. Thread it through the casing with a safety pin. Overlap the ends, and sew together with a zig zag stitch.

9 Sew the casing shut, turn the pants right side out and you're done. Enjoy!
